CONGRESSIONAL NEWS

Definite Program Outlined for Future Work.

PEOPLE WANT NO MORE JINGOISM

Senator Smith Says Congress May as Well Pass Appropriation Bills and Adjourn.

WASHINGTON, February 10.—Although the senate failed to accomplish much today, the session served to make definite the program on a number of important subjects.

Mr. Morrill, chairman of the finance committee, gave notice that he would call up the tariff bill on next Wednesday.

Mr. Call secured assurance that the Cuban question would be made the special order following the deficiency appropriation bill. Mr. Davis, author of the Davis resolution on the Monroe doctrine, gave notice that on next Monday he would call up the resolution. Thus the three most important pending questions were given a hearing.

During the morning hour Mr. Cameron, Republican of Pennsylvania offered a joint resolution relative to a termination of the war in Cuba.

When the routine business cleared away, Mr. Smith, Democrat of New Jersey, addressed the senate on the Monroe doctrine. Senator Smith announced that he was opposed to the resolutions proposed by his colleague, Mr. Sewell, and quite as strongly opposed to those reported by the foreign relations committee, and he supplemented those two assertions with the remark that he had very little sympathy with the position assumed by the senator from Colorado, (Wolcott). There was, he argued, no occasion for any action of any kind upon this subject by the senate at this time. Both houses of congress, by the passage of the resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to determine the true divisional line between Venezuela and British Guiana, had done all that the President and secretary of state, charged with the responsibility of diplomatic negotiations with other powers desired, and all that the people expected.

Later on in his speech Senator Smit said:

"The Monroe Doctrine does apply t the controversy between Great Britain and Venezuela, quite as truly and quite as justly as if the flying squadron were now in a Venezuela port demanding the submission of a people who have won their independence. To define the methods by which a foreign power may accomplish its purpose by evading technicalities is to nullify absolutely the American principle upon which we stand."

The proper way and the only way to apply effectually the Monroe Doctrine in dealing with foreign powers, was to apply it to each individual case as it might arise.

The ringing message of the President of the United States, promptly supported by the unanimous vote of both houses of congress and by the unanimous sentiment of the country, was, he said, sufficient notice to every power in the civilized world that the Monroe Doctrine was a fixed piece of this government, to be maintained in all cases and at all hazards.

The senator believed the people were satisfied. "They," he said, "have had enough. They want no more jingoism. They are sick and tired of the constant injection of party politics and personal ambition into our dealings with other nations. They are suffering from our inaction upon matters of most vital importance. Indeed, it is a fact, and we may as well admit it first as last, that the great majority of the people throughout the country are disgusted with congress in general and the senate in particular. The most popular thing we could do today, and probably in the present condition of affairs, the most beneficial thing we could do, would be to pass the necessary appropriation bills and go home. The mere fact that we are in session is a menace to the revival of business and the return of prosperity."

Consideration was resumed of the resolution directing the secretary of agriculture to carry out the law for the distribution of seeds, and Mr. Vest, Democrat of Missouri, offered a substitute resolution directing the secretary of agriculture to purchase and distribute seeds as in previous years.

At 2.45 the senate went into executive session, on motion of Mr. Morgan of Alabama. After the executive session Mr. Mills, Democrat of Texas, announced the death of Representative Crain, and resolutions submitted by him were adopted. The vice president named Messrs. Mills, Gallinger and Kyle as a committee to represent the senate at the obsequies.

At 4 o'clock, as a further mark of respect to the deceased, the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, February 10.—The desk of Crain of Texas, who died early this morning, was draped heavily with black when the house reconvened at 10.30 after a recess over Sunday. The debate on the bond bill proceeded until noon, when the legislative day of Saturday expired.

Hainer of Nebraska spoke in favor of nonconcurrence in the free coinage substitute, McDermond, Calderhead and Skinner for concurrence.

Dingley endeavored to reach a new arrangement about the bond bill debate. He asked that tomorrow be given to the District of Columbia committee, Wednesday to a continuation of the bond bill debate, and that on Thursday the debate proceed under the five-minute rule until 4 o'clock, when the vote should be taken. There was no objection.

Sayers made a formal announcement of the death of his colleague, and offered the usual resolutions, which were unanimously adopted. A committee was appointed by the speaker to accompany the body to Texas, after which, at 12.15 the house, as a further mark of respect, adjourned until tomorrow.

Kruger's Proviso.

PRETORIA, February 10.—President Kruger has notified Sir Hercules Robinson, general of the Cape Colony, that he is willing to visit England, according to the suggestion of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, provided the subjects of the proposed conference between himself and Chamberlain are definitely specified before hand.

Congressman Craine's Death.

WASHINGTON, February 10.—Congressman William H. Craine of Texas, a representative since the forty-ninth congress, died today.

THE QUEEN'S MESSAGE.

A Forecast of What She Will Say to Parliament.

LONDON, February 10.—The Press Association this evening sent out a forecast of the Queen's speech which is to be read tomorrow at the opening of parliament. It says that the speech is longer than usual but that it does not announce any sensational departure in policy. It opens with expressing satisfaction that Great Britain is at peace with all the powers, and in referring to the Transvaal incident, recites the course of events rather than furnishes an indication of the government's intention.

There is a guarded allusion to the Venezuelan question and no specific announcement in regard to arbitration. But a reference is made to the prospects of a friendly understanding with the United States with regard to the Venezuelan dispute.

With reference to the deplorable events in Armenia the hope is expressed that the reforms will be carried out.

Corpse Identified.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 10.—A body that was found on the ocean beach near the Cliff House yesterday was today identified as that of H. C. Potter, a wealthy grain merchant of Tacoma. Potter was a brother of James Brown Potter, and a nephew of Bishop Potter of New York. Death was caused by drowning. Potter came to this city a week ago to make a visit but disappeared two or three days ago. It is said that some of the circumstances point to the conclusion that he took his own life. Potter was 30 years of age and left a widow.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER.

AN AGED INSTRUCTOR MEETS A HORRIBLE DEATH.

An Unknown Assassin Enters His Study and Kills Him With a Shovel.

NEW YORK, February 10.—What appears to have been a cold blooded murder was committed today in the institution for the improved instruction of deaf mutes. The victim was Professor Max E. Glan, 68 years of age, an instructor in drawing. The body was found in the study of the Professor, on the fourth floor of the institution. There were a number of horrible gashes on the back of the head and near the body was found a bloody iron shovel with which the murderer had evidently struck down his victim. No apparent motive for the crime was discovered. When the Professor's clothing was searched his gold watch and chain were found intact and 60 cents in change, a bunch of keys, a pipe and a match box were also found in his pockets. It was said by Superintendent Green of the institution that he did not know that the Professor had an enemy in the building and for that matter in the world. He said he was a man who kept well to himself and after his business had been transacted at the institution he left and had but few words with anybody. He said the Professor had been with the institution a number of years and that his methods and work were satisfactory.

If the murder was not committed by a person who had free access to the institution, the attaches are puzzled to know how any person could get into the place without being seen. There are but two entrances and these are in the front of the building. The upstairs doors are always locked, and at the basement door, which is the usual way the building is entered, there is always an attendant, and it would have been impossible for a person to have gained an entrance in that way without discovery. No one in the building was found who had seen any stranger enter during the afternoon. All the windows were examined, but no clue was found. The entire absence of motive is puzzling the police, and so far as known they have not a single clue on which to begin work.

A SHAKY STORY.

May Hollingsworth's Confession Discredited.

CINCINNATI, February 10.—Though the police officers of the two states continue a most vigilant search for further incriminating evidence against the two students who are accused of the brutal murder of Pearl Bryan, the labor of today brought them little reward. The most that can be said is that they found a few more threads leading into the tangled skein. As to the manner of the murder nothing more is known tonight than was known last night.

Lulu May Hollingsworth, the young woman who is supposed to know something about the Fort Thomas murder mystery, made another alleged confession tonight. She says the death of Pearl Bryan was caused by an abortion, and that it was performed in a stairway in this city. Miss Hollingsworth says that she performed the abortion at the request of Miss Bryan. She also says that she received a letter from Jackson in which he explains how and where the woman was decapitated. The police believe Miss Hollingsworth is a notoriety seeker and discredit her story.

Trial at Johannesburg.

PRETORIA, February 10.—The trial of the members of the reform committee of Johannesburg was resumed today, having been adjourned over from Friday last. The examination of witnesses with reference to the funds of the National Union showed that a bank account had been opened in the name of a development syndicate by Cecil Rhodes, Messrs. John Hayes Hammond, Phillips and Fitzpatrick.

Condition of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, February 10.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $171,310,200; gold reserve, $44,663,403.

WEYLER IN COMMAND

How He Was Received at Havana.

HIS PLAN OF CAMPAIGN UNKNOWN

Believed That He Will Endeavor to Bring About a Decisive Battle.

HAVANA, February 10.—The steamer Alfonso XIII arrived here at 6 o'clock this morning, having on board General Valariano Weyler, the new captain general of Cuba; Nicaulo, marquis of Teleriffe, and Generals Enrique, Barges, Feridicko Ocheando, Miguel Melquiso, Marimus Ahumada, Luis Castello, Sanchez Bernal and Juan Arolas, the latter being the hero of Jolo, Phillipine islands.

The entire city was brilliantly decorated in honor of the occasion and the bay was a splendid sight, all the warships and merchant craft present being decorated with bunting. The wharves were crowded with people at an early hour and all the steamers and tug boats procurable were loaded with sight seers.

General Weyler was welcomed to the city by the city council on board of Alfonso. He was presented with an address and assurance of loyalty.

At 11 o'clock the captain general came ashore and was received by General Marin and staff. The streets were packed with people who displayed the greatest enthusiasm. In fact, rarely has a distinguished person been received so warmly as was General Weyler today. The balconies in all the streets about the water front and in the vicinity of the palace were full of ladies in holiday attire and they showered flowers upon the new commander as he passed.

The general seemed much pleased with his reception and upon arriving at the palace formally took over the duties of the captain generalship, taking the oath of fealty over a Crucifix and Bible.

The German warships which are here saluted the arrival of General Weyler, as did all the Spanish warships in port and the forts ashore.

After the reception of the local military and civil authorities and clergy was completed, General Weyler appeared upon the balcony of the palace and reviewed the troops.

The march of the troops was probably the finest sight of all. With the exception of those actually on duty in the fort and the interior provinces all the infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineer and marine batallions and sailors forming the garrison of Havana, turned out in the neatest possible manner, uniforms bright and clean, arms shining and bands playing gallant music, until the houses echoed and re-echoed with the crash of military music.

Accompanying General Weyler were Captains Gelabar and Linares, known as "Military editors." They will most likely have charge of the press censorship here and it is already rumored that there will be considerably more difficulty experienced in this connection by the correspondents in the future.

So far as the general situation is concerned, there is no change. Indeed nothing of importance is expected for some days. General Weyler will first devote himself to a complete review of the operations already undertaken and he will then figure out the situation as it actually exists. For this purpose, almost immediately after taking the oath of office, he issued orders to be sent to all the commanders in the field to draw promptly and forward to headquarters here complete returns of the condition of their commands, together with the state of the railroads, telegraph and public thoroughfares and the probable location and strength of the enemy in their neighborhoods.

The exact plan of campaign of General Weyler, naturally, is not known, but it is believed that it will be a different one than that of Campos. He is likely to call in all the small detachments of troops which have had such weakening effect upon the Spanish operations and he will try to drive the insurgents into a position from which they cannot escape without a pitched battle.

General Weyler will also muster as strong a force of cavalry as he can. His first efforts will also be directed to concentrate his forces and restoring public confidence. Later, he will try to engage the insurgents, who are understood to be concentrating their forces in anticipation of having a much more difficult task before them than they have had up to the present.

THE ZANTE CURRANT CASE.

Judge Morrow Has the Matter Under Advisement.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 10.—Assistant United States District Attorney Knight and A. P. Van Duzer occupied today in the United States district court in presenting arguments and reviewing testimony in the Zante currant case. The proposition was as to whether the Zante currant is a currant or a dried grape and whether under the McKinley bill all dried grapes known commercially as Zante currants are to be admitted free of duty, or whether the term applied to the product of Zante in Greece. Judge Morrow took the matter under advisement.

The Divine Healer in Jail.

SAN BERNARDINO, February 10.—If Francis Schlatter, the divine healer who created such excitement in Colorado and New Mexico, is not now confined in the county jail on a charge of vagrancy, there is a man in jail who certainly resembles him most remarkably. "God will help me," said he in response to an inquiry as to how he felt this morning. He believed himself under the guidance of the Almighty. A photograph was taken of the prisoner today and it resembles photographs of Schlatter. The face is also very much like the accepted pictures of the healer.

Prize Fight at Fort Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., February 10.—A scandal developed at Fort Omaha today when Privates Cavanaugh and Murphy were arrested for prize fighting, and 100 others who witnessed the prize fight expect to be ordered to go to the guardhouse tomorrow. It has been stated and generally credited that the two men fought for a purse that was furnished by the officers of the fort. This is most emphatically denied by Colonel Bates. While he has no doubt that there was a purse in sight, he says that he was sure it was not made up by the officers.

The British chartered South Africa Company issued a statement in London last evening to the effect that the annual meeting of that organization was postponed owing to the inexpediency of holding it while the trial of Dr. Jameson is pending.

ANOTHER GIRL MURDERED.

The Corpse Identified as the Remains of Mamie McDermott.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 10.—The body of the girl known as May Smith, who was murdered at an early hour this morning at 135½ Morton street, has been identified. The murdered woman's real name was Mamie McDermott. She is the daughter of Mrs. Annie McDermott, who lives on Madison avenue. An autopsy held yesterday confirms the fact that death was due to strangulation, but neither that confirmation nor the best efforts of the police have served so far to locate the murderer. He did his work silently and swiftly and made his escape in the night, leaving no trace behind.

THE BELMONT CHURCH.

A Presbyterian Organization is Completed.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—At a meeting of the church held in Belmont hall at the close of the morning service on the 9th instant the organization of the Belmont Presbyterian church was completed by the election of an additional elder and a board of trustees. There were also two additions to the membership of the church.

The elders of the church are O. H. Robinson and George Selby. The last named is not yet ordained and installed. Those, together with J. S. Tannahill and M. Guth, constitute the board of trustees.

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Stockton in the First Presbyterian church of Fresno next April the church will ask to be taken under its care and placed upon its roll of churches. Very much will depend upon the progress made in the meantime as to the action of the Presbytery upon that request.

Another question which will come before the Presbytery will be as to the necessity of a church in the location in which the Belmont church is placed. The members of the church and many others are a unit in the belief that a church is needed in the locality, and will with confidence await the action of the Presbytery. O.A.M.

Yet It Is Sad, Too.

From the Haywards Mail.

It is said to be a sight that would cause laughter in the hottest corner of hades to see Ambrose Bierce wandering about Washington, his month agape at the appalling discovery that only a dozen of the members of congress knew him, and one of these believed him to be a maker of diminutive cathartic pills.

James W. Minturn, mayor of Minturn, Madera county, is among the visitors in Fresno.

TEN FOR ACQUITTAL

The Clark Wood Jury Disagrees.

THE RESULT A GREAT SURPRISE

District Attorney Snow Says He Will Prosecute the Case Again.

The case of the people against Clark E. Wood, charged with embezzlement, was given to the jury at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. After being out two hours the jury reported to the court that an agreement could not be reached. They stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. Judge Conley discharged them, and remanded the defendant to the custody of the sheriff.

Attorney Tupper began his argument when court convened at 11 o'clock, and spoke two hours, from 11 to 12 and from 1 to 2. His main contentions were on legal propositions of the case. He urged that the indictment was invalid on the grounds that had been set forth during the trial. He paid his respects to the late grand jury and styled its indictments of Wood as a desire to "jump onto somebody." In its final report the grand jury stated that it had found four indictments and had examined 265 witnesses. Only three witnesses had been examined in the case of Clark Wood. "The grand jury had to make some showing," said Mr. Tupper, "and this unfortunate defendant got it in the neck. The grand jury reported that Armstrong & DeGuerre had presented a fraudulent bill to the county, $800 in excess of what they were entitled to. The statute says that any one who presents a false and fraudulent claim to the county is guilty of a felony. Why did not the grand jury indict Armstrong & DeGuerre? No, they had to indict this poor, unfortunate devil, Clark Wood."

The attorney argued that the prosecution had failed to make out any case except on the testimony of Reporter Madsen of the REPUBLICAN. He paid a tribute to sensational journalism, and argued that the defendant's admissions to the reporter had to be taken with some grains of allowance. Mr. Tupper again reviewed the technicalities of the case, and closed with an eloquent plea for mercy. He quoted both from the Bible and from Shakespeare.

District Attorney Snow then closed the argument. He averred that the indictment was valid. After replying to further points brought out by the defendant's counsel Mr. Snow closed.

Judge Conley then read his instructions to to the jury, which were somewhat lengthy. The jury retired with the result above stated.

The court questioned every juror and each one asserted that he would not change his vote. Foreman Austin said the jury stood 10 to 2. Judge Conley was satisfied that an agreement could not be had and discharged the jury.

It was afterwards ascertained from the jurors that they stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. This result caused considerable surprise. Many had expected a conviction, while there were some who expected a hung jury. But few thought that more than two or three of the jurors would vote for acquittal. The only defense offered was legal technicalities, and many did not think that the jury would consider these, leaving them for the court.

In conversation with jurors who had voted for acquittal it was ascertained that they had done so on account of technicalities. The main reason advanced by the jurors was that it had not been proven that Wood had "converted the money to his own use." All the other legal points argued by the defense had their influence also.

The two jurors who voted for conviction were W. J. Wilson and J. R. Austin.

District Attorney Snow stated to a REPUBLICAN reporter last evening that he was very much surprised at the action of the jury. He will prosecute the case again.

The charge of perjury against Wood was postponed till this morning at 9.30.

TO SELL RAISINS.

There is no use trying to disguise the fact that a large number of the raisin growers of this state are very near to "the end of their rope." Succeeding years of disastrous failure to secure living prices has brought their inevitable result, and a majority of those who have given their land and their time exclusively to the production of raisins can go no further unless the means is found at once to change existing conditions.

So many things have been tried with practically no beneficial results that the avenues supposed to lead to better conditions appear to be very nearly exhausted, and a majority of growers are discouraged and know not which way to turn for relief. Time and again the growers have tried to organize in connection with the packers and commission dealers, and such organizations were effected but they accomplished nothing. The growers here tried to organize alone, but have not been able to do so. The commission packers have even tried to effect an organization among themselves for the purpose of maintaining prices, but mutual distrust defeated the proposition. The co-operative packing and marketing plan is evidently a move in the right direction, but it has much to accomplish yet before it can control enough of the output to protect the market. It may do this eventually, but in the meantime it is powerless to maintain prices against unorganized and competing dealers.

The mere proposition to "hold for cash in the sweat box," means nothing to the grower, for without some sort of organization he would not get enough cash to pay for handling his crop, to say nothing of producing it. This has been demonstrated by experience the past season: it requires no demonstration for intelligent men.

Looking the situation squarely in the face there is nothing encouraging in it to growers unless it can be radically changed. To admit defeat, however, is out of the question, especially when it is a well-known fact that the want of success is wholly due to a lack of intelligent, modern business methods in dealing with the questions involved. There is no actual overproduction of raisins, and there will be no increase of the output until the demand has increased. The raisins produced are all consumed, and would be consumed just the same if the two or three cents necessary for the profit of the grower were added to the retail price. Raisins are sold to the eastern wholesale dealers at disastrous prices not because they are particularly interested in getting them below living prices, but because the scramble of the packers to unload gives them no security if they pay a fair price that their competitor will not get the same class of goods at a lower price. Hence the wholesaler is in no position to pay fair prices or to lay in a supply of goods with any assurance that he will not be caught by a decline in a market that is altogether lacking in stability. It devolves upon the growers to remedy this condition. They must either do so, or many of them must abandon the business and "go to the wall."

The Hundred Thousand Club of this city has recently taken up this question, and at this early date it is attracting considerable attention. The idea advanced by this organization, and others, is, in the opinion of the REPUBLICAN, worthy of serious and prompt consideration. There is very good reason for believing that if the raisin growers of the San Joaquin valley will make binding agreements to sell their raisins the present year at a certain price—2½ cents in the sweat box for all merchantable raisins being suggested as the figure—and put those agreements in the hands of a local committee selected for the purpose, that a syndicate of capitalists can be formed to take up the contracts and handle the entire output on a cash basis.

The REPUBLICAN believes that the proposition is feasible, and that it can be carried out if the growers give it their sanction. With 90 per cent of the raisin crop guaranteed, a company with sufficient capital to handle the deal properly can be assured of a good profit on their investment, with the price in the sweat box fixed at 2½ cents. Considered from the standpoint of the grower the price suggested is a very low one, but it is so much better than many of them have been getting for the past two or three years, that it would be a practical business proposition to accept it for one year, unless it be considered probable that the co-operation of capitalists may be secured at a higher rate.

If the enterprise should prove a successful one for the syndicate, as there is every reason to believe that it would, a foothold would be secured and a basis of operation established from which a fairly profitable price could be secured for the grower for his next crop. It is but reasonable to suppose that it will be necessary to fix a low rate the first year in order to induce capital to take whatever risk may be involved in bringing order out of the prevailing chaos.

Such a movement as the one above outlined would not interfere in the least with the development of the co-operative packing system, for whatever may be done as to the marketing of crops the growers are in a much better position to secure a just and fair return for their product when organized into these associations, and through them into a general organization, than they are as individuals, disorganized and working often at cross purposes.

If the growers see this matter in the same light in which the REPUBLICAN does they will not be long in coming together to discuss the question of pledging their crops for the present year to any company which can demonstrate its willingness and ability to guarantee even 2½ cents a pound for raisins in the sweat box. It will be worth the difference between that figure and a really profitable price to demonstrate that it is possible to market the present output of raisins in a business-like way. If anything is to be done to save the present crop from the slaughter which has befallen those of the past few years, the work cannot be too soon or too vigorously begun.

It is a little late for congratulations, perhaps, but the REPUBLICAN cannot permit the opportunity to pass without felicitating the City Board of Trustees upon the successful outcome of their efforts to close the Chinatown den known as the Trilby Garden. The members of the board have acted with commendable firmness in the face of discouraging circumstances, and had they shown less determination than they did that den of vice would unquestionably have remained open as a place where the youth of the town were successfully lured to ruin. The board is entitled to and will receive the thanks of every good citizen of the town, and may continue to earn approval by persistent diligence of the same sort. There are no other places in the city so notoriously infamous in their character as the one just closed, but there are others whose reputations are decidedly shady. These should be kept under close surveillance and if proofs are obtained that they are being conducted in an unlawful manner they should receive the same treatment that has been given to the dive just closed. Fresno will be immeasurably benefited by driving such places out of existence and keeping them there.

Some queer things are excusable, perhaps, on the ground that they are done because of fixed habit, but when the editorial writers on the metropolitan dailies of the present day and generation excuse themselves for not elaborating more fully the subjects they discuss on account of "lack of space," no apology can be accepted. If there is anything on earth which modern daily papers do not lack it is space. They have a vast wilderness of it, bewildering in its immensity and unexplored territory as the jungles of darkest Africa. Will the editorial brethren of the great daily journals kindly take notice, and when they have written more than they know about the subject assigned to them, kindly and firmly quit without reference to a "lack of space," of which they have enough for everything and all the rubbish beside of which the alleged mind of man can conceive? "Lack of space," indeed! The people of this country might more reasonably complain of a lack of bond issues, or the inhabitants of San Francisco of a lack of cobblestones.

FOLLOWING is an extract from a special cablegram to the San Francisco Examiner from Joseph Story Curtis, of Johannesburg:

"There is practically no evidence against the prisoners. The condition of consular affairs here is very bad. The quarrel between Acting Consul Knight and Consular Agent Manion is causing serious trouble to the United States citizens in the Transvaal. This state of things is of course very detrimental to the position of John Hays Hammond. We beg of you and of all our friends at home to use your best endeavors with the secretary of state to appoint Captain Mein, who is now a prisoner, to the position of United States consul."

To a person at this distance the request embodied in the foregoing seems astounding. Does anybody really believe that it would be to the interest of the United States or any of its citizens to select a man who is prisoner of war to another nation as a consul in that country? If this would not be an affront to the Boers, the reason why it would not is not apparent. It almost seems as if America had sent her most glittering imbeciles to the Transvaal.

YESTERDAY'S San Francisco Call contained quite a lengthy and interesting article on Fresno's electric power enterprise. The Call is a diligent promoter of development throughout the state.

I MISS YOU, AMBROSE.

I miss you, Ambrose. Still the days drag on
And creep to nights when all the world is wan;
Still halt the Sundays down the weary land,
And comes the "Monarch" to my waiting hand
In vain. The prailing prattler's Prattle now
Is hushed; his "Strain Unto the Delphic Cow"
Is strained. I look, and look in vain. Alas!
There's no one now to prove that I'm an ass,
Since Ambrose went.

Since Ambrose went my aching head and brow
Do swell and swell. There's none to check them now
By proving that that swelling head contains
No single atom of amorphous brains.
Even as a child his mother dear may miss,
Who squalled, as silver treatment than a kiss,
So, Ambrose Bierce, you loud, glucosic thing,
Even while the lens do patter as I sing,
I miss you, dear.

I miss you, dear. Your muddy missiles fly
Just now at wiser, better men than I,
As they have done ere now: your yawpful splosh
Still mars the turgid words and strange, I ween,
But not for me. Oh, Ambrose, dear, come back.
I miss your clacking clacker's clackful clack;
I miss your inspiration and your drivel,
The startling words in which you termed me fool.
Sweet one, return.

It was with genuine pleasure that the writer read in the San Francisco Star that Howard V. Sutherland (for the last two years with the Star) has been given editorial charge of the News-Letter of that city. Sutherland not only is a man of much ability, a poet, story writer and litterateur generally, but he is—what is better—a man in the highest sense of the word. He is faithful, energetic and capable, and the writer doubts not that his editorial conduct of the News Letter will be successful. There is much more than ordinary courtesy in the feeling with which we wish him much prosperity in his new field.

The San Bernardino Times-Index announces that "Messiah" Schlatter probably is in that city. Very likely the Times-Index is right. When Schlatter last was heard from he stated that he was going where the people need salvation the most. The intrinsic evidence favors the southern paper's supposition.

I am in receipt of a note from a gentleman whom I esteem, in which he kindly and very sincerely takes exception to a paragraph recently published in this department. The paragraph (which the reader perhaps will remember) related to a Delanoman who loaned $3000 to a farmer, taking therefor a mortgage for $4500, with 12 per cent interest. A Bakersfield paper said that the loaner was a church member who sings "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" with much gusto. Thereupon I supplied the lines which I imagined the money shark must sing to the good, old tune, commencing:

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
Give me 42 per cent;
While the billows mercer roll
Till be filled with sweet content."

Two local clergymen since then have commended the spirit of this very poor parody, but this is neither here nor there; it is to it that my correspondent excepts as follows: "I could not bear to see our Lord's name spoken of in an irreverent way, and a hymn composed by a man of saintly character perverted from the beautiful channel of pure, inspiring devotion into the muddy stream of doggerel verse." I am glad that the letter was written, for it gives me an opportunity to make myself clear on the subject upon which it touches. I do not intend that this hand ever shall write anything in a derogatory way of "pure religion and undefiled." On the contrary, there is the one place where no shaft of ridicule from my pencil shall wilfully go. And in writing this, I do not refer to my religion (such as it is) alone, for the religion of Brown or Smith is just as dear to him, and perhaps dearer than is mine to me, and it is my place to respect it. As for the hymn in controversy, as long ago as I can remember my good mother sang it to me while I sat upon her knee, and if nothing else could make it sacred to me that fact would do so. But my parody was intended, not for the spirit of religion nor for the sacred hymn, but for the conscienceless rascal who dares to pursue his vocation of money-changer within the temple and vocalize words on whose sacredness his sordid living would cast the shadow of contempt. These creatures—these hypocrites—are to me among the most despicable of all who belittle manhood by their petty lives. Such a one I will make contemptible by all means at my command whenever the opportunity is given to me to do so. In the heart of such a fellow, if he sings "Jesus, lover of my soul," must be about such a version as I have written for him. If somebody cannot understand that I would strike not religion, but its base counterfeit, I will strike not the less on that account. But I have no sneer for religion.

That said note and principal and interest is due and unpaid; said note was made payable one year after date, on to-wit, the 1st day of March, 1896 and is also to foreclose all right, title and claim that the above defendant, Mrs. J. WORK SOON TO BEGIN

COURT HOUSE CONTRACTOR'S BOND ACCEPTED.

Proceedings of the Board of Supervisors—Adjournment Near at Hand.

The most of the session of the Board of Supervisors yesterday was spent in considering claims against the county. But one important matter of general public interest came up and was acted upon.

The bond which had been filed by the Rae Building and Contracting Company came up for approval. This is the company whose bid for rebuilding the burnt part of the court house was accepted, and the bond was required as a guarantee that the work would be done according to specifications. The amount of the bond was $23,400.

The bond was approved and was placed on file. The contractor was notified of the fact. He expects to begin the work of rebuilding this week, and will push it until completed. The central portion, or the old building, will be remodeled in several ways, and there will be another story added which will be of use some time; while the south wing will be restored about as it was before the fire.

The supervisors today will visit the county hospital, and will probably adjourn tomorrow.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

Boys Fall Asleep on a Railroad Track.

Fred Boyce and Alex Thompson were struck by a freight train early yesterday morning at Collis, and received injuries which proved fatal to one, and may yet prove fatal to the other. They left Fresno on the northbound train and were put off at Collis.

Boyce had been working for B. T. Afford in this city. Thompson was a negro about 15 years old. When they were put off the train they found a ladder which they laid across the track over a pile of hot cinders left by the train. They stretched out on the ladder to warm, and fell asleep. Soon afterwards a freight train struck them and knocked them off the track. The trainmen did not discover what had happened, and the boys lay by the track in great agony till discovered by a farmer. Boyce had received a fracture of the skull, and had one foot mashed. The negro had his left arm cut off and thigh broken.

Word was sent to this city and a wagon went out and brought them in. They were taken to the hospital. Thompson died last night, and there is little hope for Boyce. His father is said to be a physician in Santa Rosa.

THE MEETINGS CONTINUE.

Forty Members Have Been Added to the Church.

It is now four weeks since S. M. Martin began his revival work in behalf of the Christian church of this place; yet judging by the rush of Sunday afternoon and evening, the interest is still rising. No such eagerness to secure seats was ever shown in any kind of meeting in the history of Fresno.

An eloquent discourse was delivered Sunday evening on "Science and the Bible," in which many of the most eminent scientists were quoted to the effect that science does not and cannot present any antagonism to the doctrines of Revelation. Last night Mr. Martin discoursed on the "Prodigal Son."

There have been about forty additions to the church since the meetings began.

DIED FROM SCALDING.

A Child Falls in a Tub of Boiling Water.

The funeral of Lillian F. Totterdell, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Totterdell who reside at the corner of Fresno and M streets, took place yesterday morning. The child was aged 1 year, 5 months and 15 days.

The death was a very sad one. On Friday the child fell backwards into a tub of boiling water which had temporarily been placed upon the floor while some change was being made with the range. The back of the head and body were badly scalded, and despite the efforts to save the child, she died on Sunday morning.

KNOBLOCH'S BAKERY BURNED

The Loss Is Partly Covered by Insurance.

Yesterday morning at 9.30 o'clock an alarm was sounded for a fire in F. Knobloch's bakery on N street, between Inyo and Mono. The fire had gained too much headway before the department arrived, and it was evident that the building was doomed. Although not completely burned down, the house is a total loss.

Mr. Knobloch estimates his loss at $1500, while he carried an insurance of about $500. How the blaze started is a mystery, as there had been no fire in the oven since 3 o'clock in the morning.

Not Queensbury Rules.

An altercation took place yesterday on I street, near the Farmers' Bank, between E. J. Lowry of Florence addition and Jacob H. Terry of Fresno colony, which resulted in an encounter. Terry was the older man, but Lowry has but one arm, and it was only after three rounds that Mr. Lowry won the day. The contest was not a glove affair, nor conducted strictly according to Queensbury rules.

DR. SCHERNERHORN'S CARD.

Another Chapter in the Equal Suffrage Club War.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—I see by your issue of February 8th that seven of the seceders from the Equal Suffrage club, "Wish it distinctly understood that we as a club indorse all the statements made by our secretary, Mrs. Church, in regard to the legality of our transactions, but do not wish to be included in the personal remarks that are made by the principal participants in our trouble. We would furthermore state that we, who were present at most of the meetings, and knowing the facts as they really exist, feel justified in our action."

First, not one of those women who indorsed the above was at the meeting which adjourned to the call of the president (not for the holidays), as stated by Alice Adams Church in an address January 30th, according to her minutes read December 28th, in which she assiduously avoided mention of the meeting she had called over my head in the interim.

Second, and only one of them was present at the meeting on the 26th of December, when the officers were elected, and she, Mrs. Dusenberry, withdrew before its close as she stated it looked as though she was ignored when ten members voted to suspend the rules and elect officers and she alone voted no. These were the meetings over which the contention arose, as there was no business transacted during the two meetings which followed. But there was a discussion over the legality of the two previous meetings in which I read from an American manual of parliamentary law to prove why I took the stand I did. I also stated the opinion of two lawyers who affirmed I was right.

And now these ladies publicly announce that they know the facts as they really existed, in the two business meetings where they were not present. I should much dislike to be condemned to the rockpile or the gallows on such testimony. The judge who would have the temerity to pass such judgment on me, ought himself to be sent to the rockpile for a hundred years.

Third, these same ladies "do not wish to be included in the personal remarks indulged in by the principals." I wish they might have been kind enough to have stated who those principals were, as some of those same ladies did a good deal of talking not to have been principals, and I diagnosed their case exactly when they had to be "called down" to rest themselves, and give others a chance to speak.

DR. R. A. SCHERNERHORN, President.

PETTY OFFENDERS.

They Appear Before the Justice Court Bars.

James Thompson and Charles Grant came before Judge St. John yesterday on a charge of vagrancy. They wanted a chance to get out of town and reform themselves into good citizens, but, as from their own story, they had had about a year in which to reform, and had not yet succeeded in getting around to it, the Judge concluded that a change of treatment might be beneficial, and he accordingly sent them to try the realities of the rock pile. It is said to be a wonderful agent of reform.

Elsie Merchant, who lives in the Chinese quarters, was likewise before Judge St. John on a charge of vagrancy, aggravated by diurnal and nocturnal inebriation. She was sent to jail for thirty days.

Judge Austin set the preliminary examination of Chester Harmon for 10 o'clock this morning. Harmon was arrested on a charge of bigamy, and not being able to furnish $1000 bail, has been in prison.

Judge Clark tempered justice with mercy in the case of Charles Noldstrom, and floated him for a term of six months. If he returns within that time he will be sent to jail. The prisoner had been in court several times on charges of drunkenness and disturbing the peace, and the punishment had not been effective. The judge thought that a change of air and environments might have a beneficial effect, and accordingly ordered him to seek other pastures.

WORLD'S Poultry Cure.

We desire to call the attention of poultry raisers everywhere to the fact that the wonderful WORLD'S POULTRY CURE has accomplished more toward reclaiming the poultry industry and placing it where it rightfully belongs (in the front rank among the great industries of this nation) than all other agencies combined. It is no humbug, but a positive cure for Diphtheria, Sore Eyes, Swelled Head, Roup and Cholera, Scaly Legs, or any kindred disease of Chickens, Turkeys, Ducks or Geese, Guinea Fowls, Ostriches, Mocking Birds, Canary Birds, etc., when given according to directions.

The best money maker on the farm is the hen; she turns grass into green-backs, grain into gold, and from the sand and gravel she coins silver; there is nothing else on the farm to compare with her. The horses and cattle are heavy consumers, and to get their value we must part with them, but not so with the hen; in her small way she is a gold mine on the face of the earth; a mill that grinds that which others overlook or refuse.

Ten or twelve hens well cared for, with one tablespoonful of WORLD'S POULTRY CURE mixed in food once a week, will produce more eggs than four times that number of the same breed uncared for. For sale by

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular; then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

WARDE IN VIRGINIUS.

STRONG POINTS IN THE GREAT ACTOR.

How He Rose to Eminence—The Audience at the Barton.

Of all the tragedians who today represent the robust school of acting, including Downing, Keene, James and Warde, the latter may be said to hold the most absolute sway as a favorite upon this coast. People here undoubtedly look forward with fond anticipation to the time when this star, making his annual orbit, shall be visible to the naked eye for at least one brief night.

Aside from the regular theater goers, one always encounters other faces at the opera house on that auspicious occasion. There is always a plentiful sprinkling of the highly respectable moralist, who would not countenance anything but the "legitimate" for the world.

Then there is the future aspirant for many roles whose lips move in unconscious unison with the player until he realizes he is observed, and visibly collapses. Then (if the play be Shakesperian) there is the student of Avon's bard, armed with the play, who vainly tries to not miss a jesture of the performance, nor yet skip a line of the text.

They were all represented last night, and if Mr. Warde did not have such a full house as usually greets him in Fresno it was not because his popularity is waning, but because the rise in the price of seats is a little more than people can afford in these stringent times.

We have seen Mr. Warde at different times in most of his great characters. In fact, from the time he made his first bow as a star. And seeing him last night as Virginius, surrounded by an excellent company and the magnificent accessories of perfect costume and scenery, we could but contrast it with the time when with shabby wardrobe, scant properties and an execrable company he struggled manfully against desperate odds, carrying everything upon his own shoulders, and played to almost empty houses. But genius, or "a tremendous capacity for toil," which is the same thing, won, and he has long since made himself acknowled and has taken his place among the foremost actors of the day. Mr. Warde has, as then, the sonorous voice, commanding presence, the dignity of countenance that are the natural accessories of the heroic school, but he has grown since those days, both in a power without ranting and in a certain polish of detail.

And while he has not reached the altitude of a McCullough, who when he walked the stage in the splendor of conflicting passion, and in thundering tones hailed Appius Claudius till it chilled the very marrow in our bones, or in calling for his departed Virginia, thrilled one with such acute agony that the most ardent theater-goers wept tears of appreciation, yet his methods approach very near McCullough, and a careful and painstaking tragedian, constantly moving higher and higher in the firmament of stars.

The road of the great actor today is "through rough wastes to the stars." The actors who have preceeded him had, comparatively speaking, virgin soil and virgin emotions to work upon. They necessarily left indelible impressions difficult to efface.

Those that come subsequently must really more than equal them in order to receive the modicum of praise. They naturally lie under the shadow of those great names, from which it is difficult to emerge into the sunlight of absolute justice.

The Roman plays are certainly Mr. Warde's province and in them he does his best work. He is not versatile. In the play that demands the lover dangling at my lady's sleeve or portraying the grand passion, he is as inflexible as iron; but in such a role as Knowles' "Virginus" whose two great attributes are its tragic strength and its sublime tenderness, he is at his best. He is the incarnation of action, fiery emotion, intense reaction and explosive excitement.

One of the best of his numerous superb parts is the prison scene with Appius, where he rises to the pinnacle of the most intense tragic emotions and then changes to the poor bewildered suppliant, asking for his lost child.

Mr. Sutton, as Icilius, was a vital and sympathetic presentment of a type of chivalrous passion. He moved the house to storms of applause in his scene in the forum, where, as the ardent lover and defender of his promised bride, he defied Appius Claudius.

Mr. Herman, as Appius Claudius, was a strong character. He has a countenance that can bespeak his emotions better than Warde can portray his.

Mr. Barton as Caius Claudius, and Mr. Hickey as the honest and true-hearted soldier, sustained their roles admirably.

There is an ease and natural grace about young Ernest Warde that lifts his work entirely out of the realm of acting. He is always a favorite with an audience, and promises to tread in his father's footsteps.

Mr. Fullerton as Titus did some good work.

Miss Gillate makes a fair girlish Virginia who looked like a broken flower clinging to her father's breast in the hour of their parting. She is a charming actress, full of sweetness and grace and plenty of tragic ability to sustain her characters.

Too much cannot be said in favor of the magnificent stage setting that accompanies the play. The scene of the forum with the city in the distance, is one of the most beautiful perspective effects ever witnessed on the stage in Fresno.
